REMINISCENCES OF MR. DICKENS.-Donald S. Mitchell, the editor of Hearth and Home,

He was a generous liver, in the English sense of that term. He loved a good dinner. He kept a French cook. He took wine with his dinner habitually, and very likely a sip of Cognac atter his dinner-in the manner of rine out of ten Englishmen whose style of living was on the same scale with his. But on the other hand, he was most methodic in his habits. He indulged in no stimulants to quicken his working power, or before the hour of dinner, six p. m. He rose ordinarily at seven, or thereabouts; devoted an hour to his mail and correspondence; breakfasted in the free and easy way which belongs to most English country-houses; lit a cigar in the closing breakfast hour, and, that done, went to his study and his work-denying, ordinarily, all interruptions until one or two o'clock of the afternoon. In this period of work-as he has told us-he never smoked, and never employed an amanuensis. Every word of all his great array of volumes has been written out in his own hand. The morning's work being over, he set out upon his tramp-fifteen miles of walk as a usual thing with him, and thirty miles of walk no uncommon thing. He entertained the idea that mental fatigue and useful for life. Artificial teeth inserted only labor could be balanced by corresponding physi . AS APPROVED BY PROFESSORS AND COLLEGES. cal exercise—an idea that has a measure of truth in it, if the balance be adroitly kept. But with Mr. Dickens the balance was not kept; for on these long walks the creatures of his brain were his daily attendants, and while he strode away over the Kentish meadows, he was calculating the issues of his stories and fabricating scenes that were next day to take color in his Dinner was a gala time with him; but unceremonious and careless of dress as he might be in the earlier hours of the day, he, in his latter years at least, kept by the old English ceremonial dress for dinner. His butler and servant were also habited conventionally; and the same notion of conventional requirement, it will be remembered, he observed always in his readings and appearance on public occasions. But the law of etiquette, however faithfully and constantly followed, did not sit easily on him; and there is no portait of him which to our mind is so agreeable as that which represents him in an old, loose, morning jacket, leaning against a column of his porch upon Gadshill, with his family grouped around him. As dinner came to its close, the little grand children tottled in his "wenerable" friends, as he delighted to call them-and with their advent came always rollicking time of cheer.

"BOILED TRIBUNE."-Nothing, it seems to us. could be more consolatory to Mr. Greeley than to be assured, on quite credible authority, that after his editorials in the Tribune have had all the mental effect to which their merits entitle then, they are afterwards made the instruments of working almost miraculous curative results on the system of the unwell Syrian. As proof, we have the following stated by the Rev. Dr. Jessup, an estcemed missionary in that country, who says : -

"A Hakeem, or native dector, one day came to me and asked for a few old newspapers, to which appeal I responded by the gift of a few well worn copies of the New York Tribune. - A fortunight after, the grateful recipient came back to me in wonderful spirits, and thanked me most heartily for the gift, inviting me to go and eat grapes and figs in his vineyard, saying, 'I thank you very much for those old journals. There is nothing like them; they have worked wonders for my patients!' What was my surprise, on entering the house of the quack, to be invited to lock into an earthen jar, in which these newspapers had been soaked to a pulp in water and then in olive oil, quantities of which astounding mixture had been swallowed by this fellow's credulous patients with such amazingly beneficial results! The old Hakeem gravely thought it was the magical charm of the printed letters which did the business." Nothing like boiled Tribune!-Hor. per's Magazine for July.

A THRIFTY HUSBAND.—A Parisian widower who greatly regretted his wife, had her buried in the cemetery of Mont Parnasse. He put up no monument of marble or stone-only a small garden and a very small inscription marked the spot where his lost partner lay. First, some nasturtiums were planted over the grave-the deceased was fond of nasturtiums, These were gathered on Sundays and eaten as a salad. This attempt having been successful, bolder measures were adopted, and some little pink radished grew there, as if by chance. The official in charge of the cemetery said nothing until last autumn, when he became aware of the presence of two enormous melons in the little enclosure. This time police regulations were put in force, and this new torm of market gardening was brought to a close by the bereaved husband being requested to withdraw from the cemetery, which he did, complaining bitterly of the cruelty, and saying that he had so particularly valued the vegetables grown upon the grave, and eating them with peculiar satisfaction. bccause he felt they were offered him by his Zoe.

CURE FOR POISON OAK .- A correspondent gives this as a cure for the poison oak :--Simply bathe the parts poisoned with hot water, as hot as can be borne ; keep increasing it till it can no longer be used without burning. Press a soft towel against the parts, so as to absorb the water, and avoid rubbing ; then apply a "rather strong" solution of strong navy, or plug tobacco on the poisoned places, and let it dry. The solution is best when the water is hot. I have tried this, and have been cured, or very nearly so, in two to four day at ORGANIC WEAKNESS Immediately cured and full vigor restored.

This distressing affection, which renders life miserable and marriage impossible, is the penalty paid by the victims of impropriety.— Young persons are too apt to commit ex cesses from not being aware of the dreadfu consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of procreation is lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleas-ure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms of both body and mind arise. The System becomes deranged, the Physical and Menta! Functions Weakened, Loss of Procreative Power, Nervous Irritability, Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Indi gestion, Constitutional Debility, and Wasting of the Frame, Consumption, Decay and Death.

DR. JOHNSON, Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, Graduate of one of the most eminent Colleges in the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the heapit-als of London, Paris, Philadelphia, and else-where, has effected some of the most astonish-ing currently were ever known many troubled ing cures that were ever known, many troubled with ringing in the head and ears when asleep great nervousness, being alarmed at sudden sounds, bashfulhess, with frequent blushing, attended sometimes with derangement of mind:

effect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote connubial hap-piness. Indeed, without these the journey brough life becomes a weary pilgrimage; the prospect hourly darkens to the view, the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes blighted with your own.

DISEASES OF IMPRUDENCE. When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure firds that he has imbibed the seeds of pleasure firds that he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those, who from education and respectability, can alon befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease make their appearance, such as ulcerated somethread dismost of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremities, progressing with frightful rapidity till at last the palate of the mouth or the one of the nose fall in, and the victim of this awful disease becomes a horrid object of commisseration, till death puts a period to his dreadful suf tion, till death puts a period to his dreadful suf ferings, by sending him to "that Undiscovered Country from whence no traveller returns."

It is a MELANCHOLY FACT that thou sands fall victims to this terrible disease, owing to the unskilfulness of ignorant pretenders, who, by the use of that DEADLY POISON, MY R-CURY, ruin the constitution and make the residue of life miserable. DR. JOHNSON, OFFICE, No. 7, South Frederick Stake-BALTIMORE, MD.
